The problem you will own

A biotechnology company is a science company wearing a compliance exoskeleton. Purchase records, invoices, input tax credit, statutory deadlines and vendor documentation do not reconcile themselves. This role buys back founder time and creates records that can survive diligence.

This is not decorative support work. It is load-bearing.

What you will actually do

- Maintain bookkeeping records, ledgers, vouchers and supporting evidence.
- Prepare purchase orders and keep a clean procurement trail from request through payment.
- Maintain the purchase register and support GST reconciliation against GSTR-2B.
- Coordinate with vendors, collect invoices and resolve discrepancies promptly.
- Maintain the ROC, tax, insurance, contract and compliance calendars with responsible owners and evidence.
- Support payroll administration, attendance records, payroll documents and applicable statutory deductions.
- Prepare a monthly closing pack covering profit and loss, category spend, cash position and operating burn.

What we need

- Excellent spreadsheet discipline and comfort working with accounting records.
- Ability to reconcile a ledger to the underlying evidence rather than accepting unexplained differences.
- Clear written communication with vendors, accountants and internal stakeholders.
- A habit of documenting decisions, owners, dates and supporting filelders.

What you get

- Real ownership of operational systems in a founding-stage biotechnology company.
- Direct exposure to company finance, procurement, governance and scientific operations.
- Structured feedback and a pre-placement-offer pathway.
- Access to the company tools needed for the role.

How to apply

- CV, maximum two pages.
- A short note describing a process, tracker or reconciliation you improved.
- Any spreadsheet or operational work sample that can be shared safely.
